75th Celebrations Bring Distinguished Guest to Loyola

Loyola's 75th celebrations are in full swing this month with a bevy of distinguished guests visiting the college.

Educators, authors, artists and public figures who rank among the top of their field internationally are coming to the campus to speak, discuss and perform.

Major coup for the college is consumer champion Ralph Nader whose flying visit in slotted into one of the most prestigious lecturing schedules in North America. Nader will speak in the F.C. Smith Auditorium at 2.30 p.m. on Friday November 19.

Other celebrated guests yet to come include Pierre Berton, and Siobhan McKenna. The internationally acclaimed Irish actress will present her renowned one-woman evening of extracts, Here Are Ladies, with characters from St. Joan to Molly Brown, on November 16 at 8.00 p.m. in the F.C. Smith Auditorium. Miss McKenna, who won the Variety best actress of the season award for an Off-Broadway run, is currently touring North American cities with the show.

Pierre Berton will come to the college on Wednesday, November 10, to speak on the spirit of Canadianism. He will follow up his address in the F.C. Smith Auditorium (timed for 2.00 p.m.) with a rap session with the audience. Author, editor and broadcaster as well as television personality, Pierre Berton's achievements in Canadian media are great.

Several major guests have already visited Loyola as part of the 75th anniversary celebrations. On Monday, November 8, Rollo May, whose "Love and Will" is fast becoming the source book for post-Freudian man, gave a lecture "The End and Beginning of an Era".

On Saturday, November 6, Dr. Mary Daly spoke at the College. Dr. Daly, who holds no less than seven degrees, three of them doctorates (Religion, Sacred Theology and Philosophy), is the author of "The Church and the Second Sex", which explores the history of anti-feminism in the Catholic Church.

Admission to all 75th celebration events is free (including the Siobhan McKenna performance). There are no tickets and entry is strictly on a first come first served basis.

Fr. Bernard Lonergan is congratulated on receiving the Loyola Medal by Medal Committee chairman Bill Wilson.

World famous philosopher and theologian, the Reverend Bernard Lonergan, S.J., considered by many to be the finest philosophical thinker of our century, received the Loyola Medal at a dinner given in his honour at the Ritz Carlton Hotel, Monday, November 1.

Father Lonergan, who returned to Loyola to receive the gold medal 49 years after leaving the college at the end of his sophomore year, became only the fifth recipient since the award was introduced 10 years ago to recognize leadership and achievement in Canada.

Making the presentation Alumni president Brian Gallery commented: "To state his contribution to the great enterprise of human thought is impossible. Impossible not just because we lack the time, but primarily because we lack perspective. We do not stand at the vantage point of the year 2071 when a century of study and debate and assessment will have clarified his place in history.

"Nevertheless, because the generation to follow will ask what we thought of him, we have a duty to try even the impossible and state what we think he has done and is doing. His work then is a study of man; of man and his true centre, where his heart beats and his mind ponders; where his questions soar and his judgements reaches; where his values lie and his faith looks for its home.

"Most important of all, it is the study of The Man — Jesus of Nazareth — who realizes God's idea of Man and what Man is to be. Fr. Lonergan has brought to this study a willingness to learn from the past; a penetration in the analysis of the present; a creativity in building for the future, that have been immeasurably reassuring for those of us who are lost and afraid in these times of social and cultural upheaval".

Fr. Lonergan currently holds the Stillman Chair of Catholic Studies at Harvard University. He is probably best known for his book "Insight" which is viewed as a milestone of thought, developing an all embracing theory of knowledge that includes every area of human understanding. His latest book, "Method in Theology", is due to be published shortly.

Lack of Alumni Participation

By Ron Boucher

Last month, Bill Pelton discussed the Alumni's Role in Loyola's Evolution. I would like to continue with this theme but from a different point of view — The Lack of Alumni Participation in Loyola's Evolution.

This is my first year as a Director of the Loyola of Montreal Alumni Association Inc. We have had five Director's meetings since I joined the Board, and although I have attended all the meetings I have yet to meet all the Directors. Admittedly we are all busy, first and foremost with our own day to day struggle in the business world. However, our meetings are always held on the third Monday of each month at 6:00 P.M. and are usually finished by 7:30. Frankly, this malaise of the Alumni Directors lack of participation is reflected in the lack of Alumni participation at all Association Events.

As I am writing this plea for greater participation by all Alumni, I cannot help but believe this subject must have been covered many times before by people far more qualified than I in forcefully exhorting others to greater actions. However, it is my firm conviction that now, as never before, we as Alumni and Alumnae can influence the Loyola community, but only by active participation.

As a Director, I find the lack of communication from the Alumni body such that it is mainly the Directors views and thoughts that are being voiced instead of the 6000 Alumni we represent. We must assume that you are in agreement. However, for those of you who are the silent majority, we would dearly love to see you or if this is impossible at least let your views be known to us by writing or phoning.

During the next few years, Loyola will be changing more than it has in the last years. Possibly some of these changes will be difficult to accept by some or most of the Alumni and Alumnae. We as your Directors will be as forceful and representative of the Alumni Body as you will allow us to be. Stop being a member of the silent majority, speak up, participate in one or more of the activities sponsored by your Alumni Executive. Some of you may have heard the following from a local TV commentator, and we really mean it. "What say you friends".

Send your letters to Ron Boucher, c/o Loyola Alumni Office, 7141 Sherbrooke Street West, Montreal 262, Quebec. Your active participation is urgently required and the time is now — or are you going to stay amongst the faceless silent majority.

Dark haired 19 year old Debbie Barbagallo, a first year political science student at Loyola who is this year's Miss Alouette. Debbie, a Loyola Majorette, hails from Ahuntsic and competed against 15 finalists from Montreal universities and colleges for the title at the Autostad. As Miss Alouette she wins an all expenses paid week in Vancouver to take part, along with girls representing Canada's other major football league clubs, in the Miss Grey Cup finals. If she champions them she is likely to return home with a new sports car and a study scholarship, the prizes expected for the winner. Debbie is a cousin of Loyola alumni Richard Cormier ('70 grad) and his wife Trudy ('69 grad).

Alumni president Brian Gallery presenting Pointe Claire high school teacher John Caporuscio with the Loyola Evening Students' Association Science Medal at Loyola's Fall Convocation, October 31. The award was one of three new medals donated by the LESA for presentation to the graduating students with the highest averages in the faculties of Arts, Science and Commerce. With 206 students graduating the Fall Convocation was the largest in the college's history. Valedictorian was Evening Division and Arts Medal winner Mary Bonita Wattling of St. Leonard and guest speaker was Mr. John Dinsmore, Associate Deputy Minister of Education for Quebec. The Commerce Medal recipient was Nazar Ahmad, a 29 year old Pakistani who came to Montreal six years ago and is at present manager of the Royal Trust's head office accounting in Montreal.

Sports Night: Hall of Fame Members to be Honoured

As part of the 75th anniversary celebrations the college is organising a special sports night on Friday November 12 to honour members of Loyola's Sports Hall of Fame. To take place in the Sports Complex it will feature a hockey match between Loyola and McGill as well as a reception and presentation ceremonies.

With Loyola grad. Jim Bay, of the CFCF sports staff, as MC the evening will kick off with a get-together in the Sports Complex lecture room at 7.30 p.m. At 8.00 p.m. there will be an introduction and presentation of mementoes to past and present selection, nomination and research committee members followed by a presentation to Hall of Fame members.

The evening will also see displayed for the first time the new biographical scrolls of each Hall of Fame member which will be hung beneath their portraits in the Hall of Fame in the Athletic Complex lobby.

Twenty-two sportsmen have been selected as Hall of Fame members since the idea was launched in 1966 by the Alumni Association following a suggestion by Ed. Enos, Loyola's director of physical education.

The members are: Robert "Bob" Bedard, '51; Dr. Robert J. "Bob" Brodrick, '43; Charles "Dinny" Dinsmore; Paul Haynes, '30; Bernard H. "Bernie" McCallum, '43; The Late Senator Charles "Chubby" Power, '07; The Late Francis J. "Shag" Shaughnessy Sr.; Francis J. "Frank" Shaughnessy Jr., '32; His Excellency Pedro R. "Pete" Suinaga, '26; The Late Robert John "Jake" Warren, '43; T. Connell "Connie" Broden '52; Edmund R. "Ed" Meagher, '46; J. Joseph "Joe" Poirier, '57; Norman A. "Norm" Smith, '27; Herbert English, '53; The Late Harry Hyland; Dr. John McMullan, '53; Dr. William Orban; Dr. William L. Beauregard, '54; The Late John O'Neill Gallery, '17; Peter Anthony Howlett, '63; Clifford S. Malone, '47.

ALUMNI LICKED

The Alumni Association went down to defeat in both ends of a basketball-hockey doubleheader against this year's Varsity squads on Friday, October 22nd.

The B-ballers were outscored 83-56. The pressing tactics of the Varsity team were just too much for the Alumni quintet. The Alumni held their own in the first half and at the mid-way mark were down 35-31. But then came the second half and the Varsity youngsters really turned it on.

Even though the Alumni had such former luminaries as Charlie Smith, Neil Lavoie, Peter Howlett, George Lengvari, Larry Tomlinson, Terry O'Brien, Stan Wasserman, Harry Hus, Gerry McQuade, and the renowned J-C Vadeboncoeur on the roster, they could not cope with the speed and vitality of the present day athletes.

In the hockey game the Alumni team, under the guidance of Hall-of-Fame, Dr. Jack McMullan, came from behind a 5-1 deficit in the third period and were in total command as the contest came to an end. Final score: 5-4.

John Hutton, with two goals, Bob Shaughnessy, and Danny McCann were instrumental in leading the Old Warriors attack. The game was fast, aggressive, and at times a little rough.

Unfortunately, Bruce Wickham, of the Alumni, suffered a leg injury late in the third period and required hospital care.

After the contests the players enjoyed an informal reception in the Administration Building.

Plans are underway for next year's meetings.

Peter Shea, publicity co-ordinator, Lorraine d'Entremont, director, Desmond Lartigue, chairman, Tomasine MacMillan, decorations co-ordinator and Brian Skehill, director, prepare for "The Happening". The straw hats, striped jackets and flapper dresses will be de rigueur on the night.

A gay nineties theme will set the style and atmosphere of this year's version of "The Happening", which is to be held on Friday, November 19th, at Victoria Hall.

Eddie "Doc" Duchesne and his Dixie-landers will set the pace for an evening of foam, fun and frivolity with "roll-out-the barrel" type music which is bound to make you kick up your heels.

Straw hats, handle-bar moustaches and barber-pole striped jackets will be the dress of the evening for those who really want to get into the swing of things.

Adding a contemporary flair to the festivities will be the sounds of the Travelling Discotheque for the "with-it" generation.

For the more sedate, Noel Talarico's Orchestra in the main ballroom, aims to please those who prefer to swing to a big band sound.

A savory hot and cold buffet dinner, which is sure to provide a good base for the revelry that lies ahead, will be included in the admission and served from 8:00 to 10:00 p.m.

Tickets at $14.00 per couple — $7.00 each, can be obtained from the Alumni Association Office or at the door.

Clifford Malone

Loyola Trustee Clifford Malone (Arts '47) has been appointed chairman of the Canadian Textiles Institute, the top executive post in the organisation which represents a Canadian industry employing almost 100,000 people.

Chairman, president and chief executive officer of the Montreal-based Chemcell Ltd, a chemicals, yarn, fibre and carpets manufacturer with annual sales of over $120 million, he enters the position with an intimate knowledge of the industry.

Mr. Malone is concerned that imports from low cost labour countries have been seriously affecting the home industry's position in the Canadian market place. It is not making a proper return on investment and consequently it is difficult to attract investment and remain competitive, he has said.

Cliff Malone, in his coming two years as CTI chairman, sees his greatest priority in consolidating the industry's position in Ottawa. He wants as many sectors as possible reviewed by the newly set up Textile and Clothing Board and would like to see quota negotiations with some countries made tougher.
